Exciting new children's book

- Children's book effectively addresses the need for girl's education in Afghanistan
- Based on the true stories of the students of the Zabuli Education Center for Girls just outside of Kabul, founded Razia Jan

Then evening, like most evenings, I sat by my brothers Ismail and Karim as they studied by lantern light. They attended the boys' school in the next village.

Rahim, my father, worked on our farm with my uncles and cousins. My two oldest brothers, Aziz and Ahmad, worked on the quarry, cutting stones. They never wanted to go to school. Like us girls, they could not read or write.

"Ismail, why I have a piece of paper?" I asked. "Why do you need paper? You don't have homework. You can't even write," said Karim.

"Yes, I could write! I had memorized the Dari alphabet, and I could spell my name. But I was afraid to tell my brothers. What if they wouldn't let me sit with them? I kept quiet."
